1. Introduction

Under data protection law, individuals have a right to be informed about how the Salterns Academy Trust and its schools use any personal data that we hold about them. We comply with this right by providing 'privacy notices' (sometimes called 'fair processing notices') to individuals where we are processing their personal data.

This privacy notice explains how we collect, store, and use personal data about students at our schools. This privacy notice applies while we believe your child is not capable of understanding and exercising their own data protection rights.

Once your child can understand their rights over their own data (generally considered to be age 12, but this must be considered on a case-by-case basis), you should instead refer to our privacy notice for students to see what rights they have over their own personal data. Privacy Notices can be found on the school's website.

The Salterns Academy Trust, Portsmouth is the 'data controller' for the purposes of data protection law. The Trust has three schools – Admiral Lord Nelson School, Mayfield School and Trafalgar School.

The Trust's Data Protection Officer is the Chief Operating Officer (see 'Contact us' below).

3.2 Use of your personal data in automated decision making and profiling

We do not currently process any personal data through automated decision making or profiling. If this changes in the future, we will amend any relevant privacy notices to explain the processing to you, including your right to object to it.

4. Our lawful basis for using this data

We only collect and use pupils' personal data when the law allows us to. Most commonly, we process it where:

4.1 Our basis for using special category data.

For 'special category' data, we only collect and use it when we have both a lawful basis, as set out above, and one of the following conditions for processing as set out in data protection law:

- We need to process it for archiving purposes, scientific or historical research purposes, or for statistical purposes, and the processing is in the public interest.

For criminal offence data, we will only collect and use it when we have both a lawful basis, as set out above, and a condition for processing as set out in data protection law. Conditions include:

- We have obtained your consent to use it in a specific way.
- We need to protect an individual's vital interests (i.e., protect your child's life or someone else's life), in situations where you are physically or legally incapable of giving consent.
- The data concerned has already been made manifestly public by you.

- We need to process it for reasons of substantial public interest as defined in legislation.

5. Collecting this data

While most of the information we collect about your child is mandatory, there is some information that can be provided voluntarily.

Whenever we seek to collect information from you, we make it clear whether you must provide this information (and if so, what the possible consequences are of not complying), or whether you have a choice.

Most of the data we hold about your child will come from you, but we may also hold data about your child from:

- Local authorities

We will dispose of your child's personal data securely when we no longer need it.

National Pupil Database

We are required to provide information about pupils to the Department for Education as part of statutory data collections such as the school census.

Some of this information is then stored in the National Pupil Database (NPD), which is owned and managed by the Department and provides evidence on school performance to inform research.

The database is held electronically so it can easily be turned into statistics. The information is securely collected from a range of sources including schools, local authorities, and exam boards.

The Department for Education may share information from the NPD with third parties, such as other organisations which promote children's education or wellbeing in England. These third parties must agree to strict terms and conditions about how they will use the data.

For more information, see the Department's webpage on how it collects and shares research data.

You can also contact the Department for Education with any further questions about the NPD.

8. How to access personal information we hold about your child.

You have a right to make a 'subject access request' to gain access to personal information that we hold about your child.

If you make a subject access request, and if we do hold information about your child, we will (subject to any exemptions that apply):

- Give you a description of it.
- Tell you why we are holding and processing it, and how long we will keep it for
- Explain where we got it from, if not from you
- Tell you who it has been, or will be, shared with
- Let you know whether any automated decision-making is being applied to the data, and any consequences of this.
- Give you a copy of the information in an intelligible form.

You may also have the right for your child's personal information to be transmitted electronically to another organisation in certain circumstances.

If you would like to make a request, please contact us (see 'Contact us' below).

Once your child can understand their rights over their own data (generally considered to be age 12, but this must be considered on a case-by-case basis), we will need to obtain consent from your child for you to make a subject access request on their behalf.

Your right to access your child's educational record.

Parents, or those with parental responsibility, may request access to their child's educational record (which includes most information about a pupil). There is no automatic parental right of access.

There are certain circumstances in which this right can be denied, such as if releasing the information might cause serious harm to the physical or mental health of the pupil or another individual, or if it would mean releasing exam marks before they are officially announced.

If you would like to make a request, please contact us (see 'Contact us' below).

Once your child can understand their rights over their own data (generally considered to be age 12, but this must be considered on a case-by-case basis), we will need to obtain consent from your child for you to make an access request on their behalf.

9. Your other rights regarding your child's data

Under data protection law, you have certain rights regarding how your child's personal data is used and kept safe. For example, you have the right to:

- Object to our use of your child's personal data
- Prevent your child's data being used to send direct marketing.
- Object to and challenge the use of your child's personal data for decisions being taken by automated means (by a computer or machine, rather than by a person)
- In certain circumstances, have inaccurate personal data corrected.
- In certain circumstances, have the personal data we hold about your child deleted or destroyed, or restrict its processing.
- In certain circumstances, be notified of a data breach.
- Make a complaint to the Information Commissioner's Office
- Claim compensation for damages caused by a breach of the data protection regulations.

To exercise any of these rights, please contact us (see 'Contact us' below).

Once your child can understand their rights over their own data (generally considered to be age 12, but this must be considered on a case-by-case basis), we will need to obtain consent from your child for you to make these requests on their behalf.
